Information

Remember that there are no "date" or "number" memorization questions. When I give you dates and figures, they are generally correct.

The determination of whether an answer is wrong or right will not depend, for example, on the date being 1828 or 1860, or the population of people being 15,000 or 20,000. However, majorities and minorities, above and below 50% are important.

For map questions, enter ONLY the number of the correct answer in the answer field.

Please take your time and review your answers before you submit your exam by clicking the FINISH ATTEMPT button at the bottom of this page. You will be prompted to confirm your final submission, after which, you will immediately see your score and percentage for the exam.

Robert V. Remini
Yes, it was a democratic revolt of the people

Richard P. McCormick
No, it wasn't

Select one:

- ☐ a. Professor Remini's essay and point of view are greatly influenced by his extensive studies on the life of Andrew Jackson, which was clearly evident in the video shown in class.
- ☐ b. Professor McCormick, a veteran analyzer of nineteenth-century politics, explained the 1828 election through the lens of quantitative history, using statistics to break down a number of generalizations about the significance of Jackson's election.
- ☐ c. The forum videos with information provided by additional historians, revealed even more historical issues, expanding the discussion of what seemed to be a straightforward "Yes/No" debate.
- ☒ d. Most every student in the class, after reading the very same essays and watching the very same videos, came to similar conclusions about whether the Election of 1828 represented a democratic revolt of the people. ✓
- ☐ e. The amount of student participation and the level of analysis, as clearly seen in the quality and quantity of posts and replies, varied greatly throughout the week. The reasons for these discrepancies are numerous, ranging from a lack of preparation to the challenge of understanding the materials.

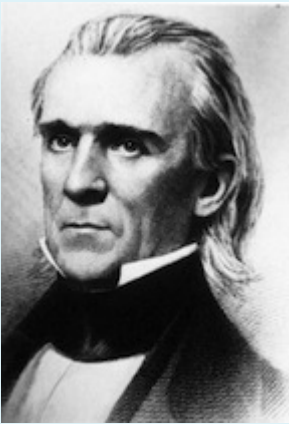

The correct answer is: Most every student in the class, after reading the very same essays and watching the very same videos, came to similar conclusions about whether the Election of 1828 represented a democratic revolt of the people.

Democrats in the mid-nineteenth century saw the government as a potentially dangerous concentration of power in the hands of selfish and greedy businessmen. Therefore, its members believed that because government rested in the hands of imperfect individuals, it had to be limited. Of the two major political parties between 1820 and 1840, the Whigs and Democrats, the Democrats were far more likely to promote racism. They feared that an activist federal government might threaten the slaveholding South. In addition, their generally negative or Calvinistic view of humanity made Democrats far less likely than Whigs to approve appropriations for the more expensive and humane moral treatment centers for prisoners or the mentally insane.

Correct
Score 1.0 out of 1.0

In the 19th Century, scientific theories on racial differences indicated that whites and blacks were actually two separate species. Regardless of these findings being completely inaccurate by today's scientific standards, many Americans, believing in the power and superiority of science, concluded that these scientists were correct and therefore condoned many prejudicial and discriminatory acts by whites against blacks during that time period.
