HANDLING ENEMY PRISONERS OF WAR (EPWs)

- Use of physical force or threats to obtain military information is prohibited
- EPWs cannot be punished for refusal to give info or for acts of other EPWs

- Do not summarily execute or punish EPWs; refuse any order to do so, and prevent others from doing so as well

- Female EPWs are entitled to appropriate care and facilities; separate from male EPWs when possible

- All EPWs are entitled to practice their religion

- Do not use EPWs as a shield against attacks; move EPWs to the a safe area as soon as practicable

- If unsure whether an individual should have EPW status, treat the individual as an EPW and determine status later

- Captured medics and chaplains are not EPWs, but may be detained to administer to the needs of EPWs

- Sick and wounded EPWs are entitled to the same quality and priority of medical care as our own troops

- Do not delay in getting wounded EPWs medical care

- Escaping (or escaped) EPWs, after recapture, may only face disciplinary punishment for their escape

ENEMY PRISONERS OF WAR (EPWs)

- Use handcuffs and blindfolds only when absolutely necessary to restrict EPW vision or movement; remove promptly upon reaching the EPW holding area

- Strip search EPWs down to T-shirts and trousers only if necessary; commanding officers must supervise all searches; conduct same-sex searches whenever possible

- Confiscate ONLY items of military importance

- DO NOT confiscate military identification card or dog tags

- DO NOT confiscate IPR (i.e. chem gear) if still needed

- DO NOT confiscate personal possessions unless absolutely necessary for safety or security reasons; a confiscated officer MUST give the EPW a receipt for the items

- Anyone can conduct questioning in a tactical environment if a commanding officer is present

- In-depth interrogations will be conducted by qualified interrogators and through acceptable means (no torturing)

- EPWs are required ONLY to give name, rank, service number, and date of birth

- Treat EPWs IAW the Geneva Convention; do not abuse EPWs physically or verbally; respect EPWs' dignity

CIVILIANS AND PRIVATE PROPERTY

- Civilians may not be taken hostage under any circumstances

- Report any possible violation of LOAC, however slight, from whatever source, to immediate commander, or if he/she is unavailable to OSI or IAG

- Seize enemy military or war property if necessary for military purposes, but not for personal gain

- War trophies may NOT be kept without command approval; submit all potential trophies for review

- Do not destroy enemy medical property; confiscate and notify medical personnel for appropriate disposition

- Do not violate civilians' rights in combat zones

- Protect civilians from acts of violence and threats by military members, but KNOW YOUR ROE; intervening in a purely civilian matter is not always authorized

- Use non-lethal force when possible to deter civilian aggression

When all else fails, remember: YOU ALWAYS HAVE THE RIGHT TO DEFEND YOURSELF AND YOUR FELLOW AIRMEN, even if the aggressor is a civilian!
