8	3	1082395722	2000000000	Bargaining Update		In December we successfully settled the Economic Agreement for July 1, 2003-June 30, 2005. In January membership strongly ratified the agreement, with over 98% of those who cast votes affirming the contract. You have already seen benefits from this agreement in the form of increases to the salary schedules, step increases, retroactive pay in both categories, and increased employer contributions to the Flexible Spending Section 125 Medical plan. We are currently working on several important issues described in detail below. These include: 1) completion of the Faculty Compensation Study for both contracted and part-time faculty, 2) the 3 to 4 credit conversion process, 3) the Flight Tech Demand to Bargain, and 4) a general bargaining survey to prepare for the next round of bargaining.

Part-time Seniority (Article 34.5.1) --Grievance resolved when department chair agreed, in writing, to observe contractual obligations 3. Complaint procedures (Article 25.8) --Informal grievance, resolution pending (as stipulated in the contract, faculty must recieve, in writing, any complaint that the College deems to have merit, and within contractually-stipulated timelines)

14	1	1082424596	2000000000	New LCCEA Faculty Newsletter – Welcome!

[b]by Claire Syrett[/b] Last Fall, the LCCEA Executive Board voted to join the ESSN Program Committee and appointed me to be our representative on this body. The purpose of the Program Committee is to develop local campaigns around issues relevant to the various groups represented; these include non-profit community organizations, union workplaces, and church groups.

[u]Brought to you by the LCCEA Faculty Newsletter Committee:[/u] Joe Escobar Michael McDonald Jim Salt Claire Syrett Welcome to the first edition of a monthly LCCEA faculty newsletter, to be published the third Monday of the month, September through June. Earlier efforts to develop a faculty newsletter faced competition from other heavy commitments (especially bargaining, grievance, and college governance work) as well as some unanticipated complications, so we're delighted to now have in place a mechanism for publishing Association reports, updates, news, and other information relevant to LCC faculty members. We hope you find it useful in staying in touch with LCCEA work and issues related to LCC faculty members.

The Faculty Workload Advisory Committee (FWAC) was created by a Memorandum of Agreement with the College to clarify and define faculty workload benchmarks and to resolve workload issues and concerns (see Article 1.1 of the MOA). It is also the body responsible for collecting the data from the workload survey that was sent out last week to Instructional Managers and Association Division/Department Representatives. Please see the following report on the status of specific faculty workload requests and the annual faculty workload survey.

Last month, I reported that LCCEA was pursuing an informal grievance, on behalf of all members (i.e., an "Association grievance"), over violations of contract language regarding the manner whereby all complaints that are deemed to have merit, by the College, must be reduced to writing and forwarded to faculty members who are subject to such complaints (Article 25.8). Specifically, the Association had become aware of at least two instances where faculty members were not forwarded written complaints, in timely fashion, even as College officials moved to act on the complaints in question. This grievance has been resolved at the informal stage. A College representative sent a statement of apology to one faculty member who had not been informed, in timely fashion, of the filing of a formal complaint against her. In addition, we received a written statement from the Director of Human Resources acknowledging the importance of observing contract language in insuring faculty rights to due process. Given these written statements, the Association will be in a very strong position to proceed with a formal grievance, in the event of further violations of Article 25.8.

The LCCEA Nominations Committee received the following nominations for currently open positions: [b]President: Jim Salt Secretary: David Shellabarger Vice President for Off-campus Faculty: Claire Syrett[/b] No further nominations were received from the floor, during the All-faculty meeting on May 6, and nominations were declared closed. Joe Escobar will serve as Election Supervisory Committee Chair. Elections for officers and votes on the 2004-2005 LCCEA Budget will be held next week, May 24 - 28. Election information will be provided by the Election Supervisory Committee. Submitted by Michael McDonald, Chair, on behalf of Jose Chaves and Ken Zimmerman.

This week the ESSN Program Committee finalized draft language for the Community Standards Campaign. This campaign, to be launched in the next month or so, is focused on creating viable community standards for the granting of public subsidies to private corporations in Lane County. The Program Committee, which represents unions, religious groups and local non-profits, worked on these standards in cooperation with other community and labor committees in Eugene and Springfield. While the draft language contains many specific requirements for public grants, highlights include; provisions for the return of grants if company fails to follow through on commitments, hiring, retention and promotion of local residents, wage guarantees, use of local vendors first, and promotion of sustainable development. The next step for this campaign is to make presentations of these standards to groups around the county with the eventual goal of seeking their adoption by the Lane County Commissioners. If you would like more details on the standards please feel free to contact ESSN: [url=mailto:essn@efn.org]essn@efn.org[/url], [url=http://www.solidaritynetwork.org]www.solidaritynetwork.org[/url], or me [url=mailto:syrett@lanecce.edu]Claire Syrett[/url].

The LCCEA Building and Environmental Health Committee has been working on a health survey, to be distributed Fall of 2004 to all faculty at LCC. The survey will be used to create a database to help us track and understand health problems and concerns related to our work environment. We hope to use the information gathered through the survey to assist the administration in identifying and remediating problems related to indoor air quality and environmental health and improve our working conditions. The BEH Committee will provide more information about the survey during Fall Inservice, 2004. Questions about or interest in assisting with this project can be directed to Kate Sullivan, English, or Judy McKenzie, Academic Learning Skills. Currently, McKenzie is working on the design of the database.

By Eileen Thompson, SLI Coordinator "SLI? What is that again? Didn't we do that at Inservice?" Over the past several years, Fall Inservice is about the only time when the focus of the faculty, for one day, is directly on the Strategic Learning Initiative. It is a designated time when we are asked to think about the "big picture" of what would make learning happen more effective in our classrooms, about the way instruction is delivered and supported, about the systems of our work that effect all Lane employee groups to best serve the adults who come to Lane to learn.

The Faculty Workload Advisory Committee is now meeting weekly. We expect in the next two weeks to provide final recommendations to the College and Association on workload adjustments for current applications. The College has agreed that any such adjustments will go into effect beginning Fall (2004) term. The committee has also begun to review the workload surveys for use in making reasonable and equitable workloads.

On behalf of the LCCEA President and Executive Board, I submit the following proposed LCCEA Budget for 2004-2005. We have highlighted the significant changes from last year's budget, identifying significantly increased items in bold and significantly decreased items by underlining.

Contracted Step 11.5 Created Effective July 1, 2004 As recently reported in the May 4, 2004 Bargaining Update, 2% will be added to the contracted faculty top step for Levels 1, 2, and 3 to create step 11.5 effective July 1, 2004. This additional half step was negotiated in the Economic Agreement for July 1, 2003 - June 30, 2005, mandating the salary increase if the joint faculty compensation study was not completed by the end of April 2004.

In our election this spring, you, the LCCEA approved a ballot measure to provide on-going financial support to the Eugene-Springfield Solidarity Network (ESSN). I congratulate you all on this decision to step up to our commitment to building coalitions of community support in Lane County. I pass along the thanks of Hope Marston and Erik Mueller, two key ESSN folks, who also appreciate your support. These funds will help us begin our campaign for community standards for public subsidies to private business. We have finalized the standards with the input of many local groups and unions. Now we are creating the presentation we plan to make to other community members and local governing bodies. Our original plan was to target the County Commissioners, as they seemed most likely to listen. However with the recent city election results we will most likely bring our campaign to the Eugene City Council as well. By coincidence, Kitty Piercy incorporated many of our community standards into her proposed economic plan, so we expect Eugene's new mayor to be particularly interested in the ESSN community standards campaign. We are continuing work on forming a Worker's Rights Board. There are no new developments at this time. We are still seeking labor-friendly community activist and leaders for seating on the board. Please feel free to pass along suggestions for our consideration. Thank you again for your commitment to this important work.

VOTE!! VOTE!! VOTE!! (Just a reminder!) The Eugene Springfield Solidarity Network (ESSN) is in the very beginning stage of our Community Standards Campaign. To begin what we hope will be a county wide conversation about economic development and public accountability we are holding a town forum in Cottage Grove on Thursday October 21st. County Commissioner Don Hampton will be on hand to address how effective (or ineffective) economic development tools have been for this area. ESSN will outline the specific standards we developed in coalition with other organizations over the last year. Our hope is to educate and actively engage community members in the process of how our public money is used to subsidize private industry in Lane County. As our campaign continues we plan to visit other towns and cities in the county in order to hear how they think public accountability should be brought into the economic development granting process. These forums will allow ESSN to share the Community Standards we developed and incorporate new ideas from the rest of the community. If you live in Cottage Grove please join us at the Cottage Grove community Center at 7pm. October 21st. You can find more details on the ESSN Community Standards and our campaign at <http://www.solidaritynetwork.org/> On the LCCEA front we are gearing up for Main Contract bargaining. This means that as your LCCEA Organizer I have been busy working to turn folks out for meetings. We have had one meeting specifically for Part Time faculty and another is scheduled for October 25th at 3:30 in Forum 310. These are great opportunities for Part Timers to provide input to the bargaining team as well as address other issues of particular importance to Part Time faculty. We had a small but engaged group at the first meeting. I hope more of you will be able to attend our Monday meeting. In addition to holding meetings, your bargaining team is preparing a faculty survey. The purpose is to find out what issues are most important to faculty and how do you would like to see them addressed. We are working with your department representative to get surveys out to faculty and returned to the bargaining team. (A list of department reps is available on the LCCEA web page.) These surveys are an important tool in determining our approach to bargaining. The greater the level of response, the more effective the bargaining team will be in representing the faculty. We hope to have the survey out to faculty within the next week. Once you receive yours please respond promptly. We all know how things are easily buried in our piles of papers. Through both LCCEA and ESSN I will be continue

Around this time last year, I sent a message to all faculty concerning Article 10.9.5, which can be found on page 17 of the current faculty contract. In the interim, nothing has diminished my sense that this section of the contract provides crucial protections for faculty, and that faculty generally need to be better apprised of the need to study their RIF reports, primarily in order to insure that their course certifications are correct and up-to-date. When disputes arise concerning what courses individual faculty members are qualified to teach, the yearly RIF report (issued by October 15, according to the terms of the contract) becomes the chief arbiter of such discussions. If errors are not caught, and addressed, within 30 working days of receiving the report, faculty have no contractual means (or avenues via college policy) to appeal those errors, until a new report is generated the following year. Thus the importance of Article 10.9.5, which enables faculty to initiate a grievance within 30 working days of receiving the yearly RIF report. The grievance process provides the fastest and strongest way for those who believe the report to be in error to address concerns about course certifications, and/or their status with respect to seniority. I therefore wish to urge us all to examine the RIF report with great care, and to promptly communicate any concerns to LCCEA department representatives, or directly to a member of the Grievance Committee. Speaking of which, I am delighted to announce that Claire Syrett (Flight Technology) has joined Sheila Broderick, Jim O'Brien, and me, as a member of the Grievance Committee.

This year will be an important year in bargaining. We are entering the last year of the six-year Main Agreement. This means that we will be bargaining both the economics and the language that defines our legal rights under the contract. Our current Main Contract extends from July 1, 1999 to June 30, 2005. It provides for an economic reopener every two years. This past January we ratified the last economic reopener under the current Main Contract for the period from July 1, 2003 through June 30, 2005. As a result of that bargain, effective July 1, 2004, your paychecks reflect a compensation adjustment of 1.93% based on the CPI all cities, step increases, a half step increase to the top step for contracted faculty to create step 11.5, a small increase in insurance out of paycheck costs, and an increase in the employer contribution into the Flexible Spending Section 125 Medical (Once the faculty member has contributed $240 the College will contribute $150 for those who elect Employee Only insurance, $250 for Employee Plus One, and $300 for Full Family). Also as a result of this bargain, a joint College and LCCEA Faculty Compensation Study was completed showing contracted faculty salaries at Lane Community College are approximately 5% lower than the closest peer college in Oregon. This should position us well for bargaining the economics in the next contract. In addition to economics, the Main Agreement includes important language that defines our rights and obligations as faculty. A non-exhaustive list includes grievance procedures, step and level placement, tuition waivers, faculty evaluations, workload, part-time seniority, department and division charters, intellectual property rights, retrenchment provisions, Faculty Administrative Support Positions, and the Strategic Learning Initiative. We expect formal bargaining to begin in early November. Now is the time for all faculty to review the Main Contract. If there are provisions that you have been responsible for or involved with as faculty your insights into the strengths and weaknesses of the contract will help the bargaining team establish our bargaining blueprint. Contact a member of the LCCEA bargaining team directly. This year your bargaining team consists of the following faculty: Stan Taylor, Bargaining Chair, [email]taylor@lanecc.edu[/email] , 463-5820 Dean Bergen, [email]bergend@lanecc.edu[/email] , 463-5385 Tamara Pinkas, [email]pinkast@lanecc.edu[/email] , 463-5011 Claire Syrett, [email]syrett@lanecc.edu[/email] , 463-4315 Jim Salt, LCCEA President, [email]saltj@lanecc.edu[/email] , 463-5433 Expect to hear from us soon in a variety of ways. However, if you have an issue that needs to be raised in bargaining don't wait for us to find you. Contact us with your issues. We represent you. During the last bargaining, when the Administration team attempted to undermine us by sending e-mail communications directly to the faculty, it was your solidarity that made the good outcomes possible. This solidarity will provide the foundation for our success in bargaining a new long-term agreement.[b]/[b]

The Faculty Workload Advisory Committee met during the summer to finalize the recommendations that have been the focus of the committee for the last year. Specifically, the faculty groups for which the committee was finalizing recommendations were: Nursing, Speech, ESL, and Media Arts. The committee as a whole, however, could not agree on the final recommendations for Nursing, Speech, and Media Arts. Instead, the committee split its recommendations, with the faculty representatives supporting the requests to change the workload for the above groups in accordance with the preliminary agreement of Spring term*, and the management representatives asserting that they could not. Thus, two sets of final recommendations have been signed and are being sent to the College Administration and the LCCEA President. Further, after learning that the management representatives could not support their requests, each of these faculty groups have asked that their cases be taken to interest arbitration. Faculty and management representatives did agree to a compromise for the final recommendation for ESL, with the support of the ESL faculty. This recommendation calls for a maximum of 48 credits for the 2004-05 academic year and a maximum of 45 credits for the 2005-06 academic year for the ESL contract faculty. The Faculty Workload Advisory Committee will start meeting this academic year on Monday, October 11. We encourage faculty members, as individuals, departments, or divisions, to bring their workload concerns to the committee. * See previous FWAC reports in the LCCEA newsletter, below.

35	8	1100635152	2000000000	Community Standards Campaign/Bargaining Prep	The Eugene Springfield Solidarity Network (ESSN) is in the very beginning stages of our Community Standards Campaign. As a first step we held a forum in Cottage at which County Commissioner Don Hampton spoke about economic development in the local area. Although we had a small number of attendees, this first forum on the Community Standards gave us important feedback and ideas. We are considering this feedback along with local election outcomes as we decide how to proceed with the campaign. With Don Hampton leaving the commission, ESSN is losing an important ally in the effort to bring greater accountability to the public subsidy process. But the election of Kitty Piercy offers a positive counterpoint to Donâ€™s defeat. During her campaign Kitty included a number of economic development proposals that mirror those found in ESSNâ€™s Community Standards. I will keep you up to date as our strategy develops. You can find more details on the ESSN Community Standards and our campaign at http://www.solidaritynetwork.org/ On the LCCEA front we are gearing up for Main Contract bargaining. LCCEA has held two meetings specifically for Part Time faculty as well as with Department Reps and other faculty groups. Stan Taylor has been working tirelessly to meet with as many faculty as possible. This is an important part of working to ensure your voice is well represented when we finally get to the bargaining table. In addition to holding meetings, your bargaining team is preparing a faculty survey. The purpose is to find out what issues are most important to faculty and how do you would like to see them addressed. We are working with your department representative to get surveys out to faculty and returned to the bargaining team. (A list of department reps is available on the LCCEA web page.) These surveys are an important tool in determining our approach to bargaining. The greater the level of response, the more effective the bargaining team will be in representing the faculty. We hope to have the survey out to faculty within the next week. Once you receive yours please respond promptly. We all know how things are easily buried in our piles of papers. Through both LCCEA and ESSN I will be continue to find ways of engaging you in community and union projects. You can expect more emails, phone calls and flyers. Please let me know of events or projects you think LCCEA should consider promoting.
