

They aided each other when someone got hurt, and they carried their comrades dead bodies back to camp. But, what I had never really <sup>en</sup> taking the time to think about was that the Vietnamese did the same things. This showed me some compassion. I also found some hope in learning that some people were able to find love on the other side, and pursue it, no matter the costs.

One thing that actually made me smile while reading was in Malcolm Browne's story on the night of Christmas Eve. He talked about how the American soldiers shot out into the night's sky, and moments later the Viet Cong did it as well, "as if to participate in the celebration."

grammar problems hurt readability

It seems as if you really didn't comprehend what was being asked of you in this assignment.

Part 2 A - "whiny" & story too short?

Part 2 B - which story?
Instead you list some random things you didn't learn in high school. (not what I asked)
