

Add to study guide:

Producers, Consumers, Decomposers

Riparian Vegetation

Permeability

Porosity

100th Meridian

Ecotone

From video:

Oligotrophic refers to cold water bodies with high oxygen content and low nutrients that usually occurs in mountains.

Eutrophic refers to warmer water bodies that have natural low oxygen content and abundant nutrients. Eutrophic waters usually occur in warmer climates and nutrient rich run-off into the streams and lakes.