Information

This final exam is worth 20% of your grade in this course. Please take your time, skip tough questions and come back to them later (perhaps if a later question provides you with a hint or reminder).

I'm sure the testing lab will be busy and the Moodle server will under some strain during Finals Week, so be sure to save your work every 20 minutes or so by clicking the FINISH button at the end of the exam. The next page will allow you to RETURN TO YOUR ATTEMPT to continue the exam.

When you have completed the exam (after having reviewed your answers) click the FINISH button at the bottom of the page and the SUBMIT ALL AND FINISH on the next page to complete your test.

You will then see your raw score and percentage grade on this test.

There are two main modern conceptions of rights: on the one hand, the idea of legal rights holds that there is a certain list of rights enshrined in nature that cannot be legitimately modified by any human power. On the other hand, the idea of natural rights holds that rights are human constructs, created by society, enforced by governments and subject to change. Rights can also be divided into individual rights, which are held by individuals, and collective rights, which are held by an ensemble of people or a subgroup of people who have a certain characteristic in common. As seen in the forum discussions, who has what rights, or any rights for that matter, can be a highly subjective topic.
